This study describes the Pe'iu Manu ritual, which began as a symbol of peace but evolved into a form of gambling practiced in the Sabu community of Raemadia Village.

This study aims to determine the meaning of cock spurs (Pe'iu Manu) for the Sabu Raijua community in Raemadia Village. The study took place in July 2024. The respondents were one traditional leader and three community members. The research method used was descriptive qualitative, with interviews as the data collection technique.

The data obtained from the interviews examined the meaning of cock spurs (Pe'iu Manu) for the Sabu Raijua community in Raemadia Village. Pe'iu Manu is not simply a cockfighting tradition, but holds deep cultural values that have been passed down from generation to generation. This study uses a qualitative approach with descriptive qualitative methods to understand community perceptions and interpretations of pe'iu manu. Data were collected through in-depth interviews. The results are expected to reveal the symbolic, social, and cultural meanings contained within the pe'iu manu tradition, as well as its impact on the lives of the Sabu Raijua community. Cock spurs symbolize the strength, courage, and resilience of roosters. In some ritual contexts, cock spurs can also symbolize protection, purification, or even be part of religious ceremonies.
