ABSTRACT

Thesis Title: Description of Criminal Acts of Distributing Obscene Information Through Electronic Media. The problems examined in this research are: 1. Why did the District Court judges acquit the defendant in the criminal act of distributing obscene information through electronic media?, 2. Why did the Supreme Court judges impose a conviction on the defendant in the criminal act of distributing obscene information through electronic media?. The objectives of this study are: 1. To determine the reasons why the District Court judges acquitted the defendant in the criminal act of distributing obscene information through electronic media, 2. To determine the reasons why the Supreme Court judges convicted the defendant in the criminal act of distributing obscene information through electronic media.

This research is descriptive in nature and uses normative legal research. The research variables consist of independent and dependent variables. The independent variables in this study are: the reasons why the District Court judges acquitted the defendant in the criminal act of distributing obscene information through electronic media, and the reasons why the Supreme Court judges convicted the defendant in the same case. The dependent variable in this study is the judicial decision on the criminal act of distributing obscene information through electronic media.

Based on the results of the research, the conclusions obtained are: 1. The reason why the District Court judges acquitted the defendant is because the defendant's actions were not proven legally and convincingly to constitute a criminal offense, 2. The reason why the Supreme Court judges convicted the defendant is because the defendant's actions were proven legally and convincingly to constitute a criminal offense.

Suggestions from the researcher: Law enforcement officers are expected to be more consistent and thorough in applying the provisions of the Law on Electronic Information and Transactions, in order to create legal certainty and a sense of justice for all parties. The government and related institutions should also increase public dissemination and awareness regarding the criminal act of distributing obscene information through electronic media, so that society can better understand the legal rules and the juridical consequences arising from such actions.
